STEAMER FOUNDERS IN MID ALTLANTIC.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.

Nineteen survivors of the crew and 59 passengers of the British steamer Manaman, which foundered in mid-Atlantic, have arrived aboard the steamer British Isles. A great storm was raging when the British Isles. sighted the Manxman. She had to lay to for twenty-four hours, unable to launch a boat owing to heavy seas. Finally a raft and lifeboat reached the ship and took nineteen aboard, returning for the captain and others when the Manxman" turned turtle" and disappeared.

THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT.

A ROYAL PROCLAMATION.

LONDON, December 23.

Upon the occasion of the Royal assent to the Government of India Act the King has issued a proclamation expressing confidence that all sections and races in India will display perseverance and mutual forbearance in the march towards the goal of responsible self-Government:

The proclamation announces amnesty for political offenders convicted under special or emergency legislation.

AGA KHAN PLEADS FOR TURKEY.

LONDON, December 20. Speaking at a dinner to celebrate the passage of the Government of the Government of India Bill H.H. the Aga Khan appealed for a generous in possession at the right time and peace with Turkey which would not punish posterity for the errors o a few who had succumbed to German cajelery. The Hon. E. S. Montagu replying, declared that whatever Turkey's fate, nothing could destroy the vigour and principle behind the common purpose of the Moslem States of the world. Referring to the Amritsar trouble he appealed for the suspension of judgment until the full facts were known after which it would be the Government's duty firstly to give His Majory's officers all the support to which they were entitled and secondly to vindicate the justice and honour of British rule.

The Times, commenting on the speech of H. H. the Aga Khan, emphaises that the Turkish treaty cannot be decided solely in deference to the views of Musulman India. The paper refers to Mr. Lloyd George's speech of January 1918 wherein he stated the allies, were not fighting to Seprive Turkey of Constantinople, Asia Minor or Thrace. That was not a predge but an offer which Turkey declined and must therefore abide by the consequences.

THE ANTARCTIC EXPEDITION.

TO FLY THE ICE BARRIER.

LONDON, December 22.

As regards the Antarctic expedition it is intended to fly over the great ice barrier, the peaks of which are 12,000 feet high, to the South Pole. Mr. Cope outlining the programme at the Mansion House to-day anticipated that the expedition would maintain communication with civilisation by a powerful wireless. The object was to develop the antarctic regions commercially. . The expedition would proceed to Wellington, New Zealand, reaching Magkuarie Island in October 1920, where a geological survey ly match with the Chinese "B" team will be made. The Terrangva will then go to Scott Island and establish a yesterday and just escaped drawing wireless and meteorological station, thence to Ross Sea, probably making the match by scoring a goal in the its headquarters at Newharbour. The vessel will then go to Cape last few minutes of play. There was Crozier where a party will be landed and another will set out on the no score in the first half when the barrier going as far south as possible to establish a winter observation match was very evenly contested, both camp returning to Cape Crozier the following summer. The Terranova sides making frequent incursions to will return to Wellington, coaling and provisioning for four years commist the opposing goal, but neither scored, sion on a circumnavigatory trip of the Antarctic continent with the object as cabled previously.

INDIANS IN EAST AFRICL.

LONDON, December 22.

In House of Commons Mr. T. J. Bennett drew attention to the indignation of Indians owing to the offensive references to Indians in the report of the East Africa Economic Commission.

Colonel Amery replied that the views of the report must not be regard- ed in Chinese territory but when the ed as the views of the Government of East Africa or of the Imperial Government. The whole question of the policy of the East African protectorate in regard to Indians would be discussed between the Governor of East Africa, who is now in England, and Lord Milner, when he returned from Egypt.

GERMANY'S ECONOMIC DIFFICULTIES.

ALLIES SYMPATHETIC.

Paris, December 23. The Allied reply to the German note of December 15 has been delivered, accompanied by a verbal statement that the Allies desire to take into account Germany's economic difficulties and will reduce their demands if it is shown that they have erred regarding the valuation of German harbour material. Von Lersner referred to the importance of the reply and has announced his departure for Berlin, with the experts in order to consult the German Government.

EMIR FEISUL'S ACTION.

LONDON, December 21

Emir Feisul, writing to Field Marshal Wilson in connection with the Arab occupation of Beirezzor in Mesopotamia, repudiates personally, and on behalf of the Arab government all knowledge of or complicity with this outrage, and says he has telegraphed to his brother, Emir Zeid, directing him to publish papers in a communique declaring those responsible for the outrage against their British ally, their abettors to be punished as rebels and also instructing him to order any Arab official now in Beirezzor to withdraw and release the British officers retained there and them over to the British authorities.

ARAB OCCUPATION OF BEIREZZOR.

Emir Feisul proposes to place the offenders arrested at the disposal the British authorities. He returns to Syria on December 21, and says he will be delighted to comply with any further action the British authorities

HOLIDAY FOOTBALL. SUBMARINE FLOTILLA LEAGUE FINAL.

" AMBROSE " STOKERS, 1: SUBMARINE LT. 0.

There was a large gathering on the Hongkong Club ground yesterday afternoon to watch the final of the Sixth Submarine Flotilla League, between H.M.S. !" Ambrose " and Submarine L7. The match was to decide the champions, and the ownership for one year of a beautiful cup presented by Commander Talbox.

The Hongkong Club ground was kindly lent for the occasion and a fee of 50 cents was charged for admission to the stand, the proceeds being given to the "Devastated France" Fund Several Naval men carrying collecting boxes walked round the field.

The L7 started fast and certainly appeared to be the superior team, doing most of the attacking for the best part of the first half. The fact that the "Ambrose's " defence was sound prevented them from scoring early in the game. Gadd, the Stokers' goalie, played a sound game and was one of the chief amongst the defenders, clearing shots from all angles in a fine and convincing style. Shortly before half time, the Stokers began to get into their stride and were soon giving the Submariners a very hot time. By means of clever work on the line, the right winger was able to place Downs this worthy trapping the ball smartly, did not waste any time but slammed into the net. This was the signal from the men of the mother ship. The second half was a repetition of the first, the match-being, if anything, bit faster and rather vigorous-so vigorous in fact that nearly every man was limping when they left the field after the match. The L7 men played most desperately for an equalizer, but their forwards finished weakly end thus threw away many good opportunities. The Stokers also played a determined game, they being keen to

for a hurricane of cheers and whoops

score a second goal and thus make the match safe for themselves. But try as they would, neither side could get near enough to the goal to be dangerous, and when the final whistle came, the Stokers were the champions, winning by the only goal of the After the match, Commander Tel-

The Kowloon F.G. played a friendthe defence at both ends being very sound. The second half did not prove much different to the first, and when there were only five minutes to go, it looked to the spectators as If the match would end in a draw, but Taylor was a few seconds later put in possession and running in close, put in a hard shot which would have beaten any goalie. The ball remainfinal whistle came no further goals had been scored.

HONGKONG'S CHRISTMAS. CHURCH SERVICES, ENTERTAIN-MENTS, DANCES.

There was plenty of the festive spirit in evidence in Hongkong during Christmas and Boxing Day. Many of the vessels in the harbour sported the usual shrub at the masthead and dressed ship. LORD FRENCH.

LONDON, December 21.

Lord French was busy working yesterday and drove in an open carriage to Dublin when he attended a charitable entertainment in the afternoon. LONDON, December 22

The police hunt for Lord French's assailants has hitherto been unsuccessful though it is rumoured in Dublin- that many persons have been detained as suspects. Lord French is not allowing the attempt on his life to interfere with his social engagements. Yesterday he visited a darce in aid of the Irish Police Fund, also a children's party. He appeared in his usual health and entered wholeheartedly into the spirit of the functions, being heartily cheered.

LONDON, December 23. During the evidence the Crown Counsel at the inquest of Savage at Dublin, emphasised that the Viceroy's miraculous escape was due chiefly to the fact that he was in the first car, not the second, as the attackers evidently thought. The driver of Lord French's car deposed to hearing heavy report near Kelly's Cross and on Detective Halley shouting, are in it, drive like the devil" he put on fullspeed. The second received the full brunt of the attack and was riddled by bullets from bombs only the engine remaining intact. The driver of the third cardenosed to firing at a man who was in the act of pulling a pin from a bomb, killing him instantly. Evidence disclosed that Savage partook in the 1916 rising and was imprisoned for sometime. The jury returned a veridict that deceased was shot by the escort and expressed sympathy with his relatives.

SIR R. L. BORDEN.

HEALTH NECESSITATES COMPLETE REST.

Sir R. L. Borden has issued a statement to the press saying that as his recent respite from work has failed to restore him to health he has consulted specialists, who have emphatically advised that the condition of his health forbids the discharge of his official duties and that continuance would inevitably result in a serious permanent impairment of health and eventually complete incapacity for work. His colleagues urged the postponement of his retirement until after a complete rest, representing that retirement at this juncture would be highly prejudicial to the public interest. Sir. R. L. Borden unable to disregard this and similar appeals therefore decided to take such rest as necessary while arrangements were being made for the discharge of his duties. The period of absence from duty must necessarily depend on the progress towards recovery and the condition of his health must finally determine his resumption of duties or retirement.

FIRES ON EX-GERMAN SHIPS.

LONDON. December 22. In the House of Commons Rear Admiral Adair drew attention to the recent destructive fires on ex-German liners for example the Boonah. Sir Auckland Geddes replied that the matter was being "investigated. Foul play had been suggested but it seemed much more probable that the fires in some cases were due to old bunkers not being cleaned out.

THE IRISH SETTLEMENT

CARSON VERY CAUTIOUS.

The Premier's statement on Ireland was well received by the House Tower. which was pleased with the obvious sincerity and sympathetic tone of the speech. Many members like Sir Edward Carson and his Ulster friends are dubious on details and would like to see the scheme in the form of a printed Bill for close examination before so committing themselves to its talks together in Wandsworth Jail. Utensils, Electro-Plated Ware, support. There were also signs of hostility on the part of a small minority of English Unionists.... The general opinion, however, was that if unity can be maintained or in the Cabinet during the discussions which take place in the various stages of the Bill next session, there will be no obstacles of parliamentary character which cannot easily be overcome. Following Mr. Lloyd George's statement Mr. Maclean welcomed most warmly the fact, that there had been throughout the speech an entire absence of proposals for the further coercion of Ireland, though, however, the scheme did not go far enough. We had solved the difficulties of South Africa by a broad policy and a similar handed open policy might solve the Irish problem. Sir E. Carson said he was not going to pronounce an opinion on the proposals until he saw them print. He was not even going to Ulster until two things had happened, firstly, to see the bill in print, secondly, to be assured by the Prime Minister that he meant to go through with the Bill to the end. The admission of Ulster as a separate unity was, he admitted, a great advance towards settlement. He appealed to the government to keep Ulster under the British Parliament or leave over the question of a separate Parliament for Ulster until the whole devolution question came up for consideration.

Mr. Arthur Henderson described the scheme as a halfhearted and unsatisfactory compromise. He said the Government might have produced a scheme of Dominion Home Rule leaving out the Army and Navy. Mr. Wedgwood declared that a plebiscite of the Irish people on the question of whether they wished to sccede from the British Empire ought to be taken. He suggested that President Wilson should see the plebiscite carried out in a proper manner. LONDON. December 23.

Irish Press comment on Mr Lloyd George's proposals is discouraging. The Dublin Evening Telegraph representing, Constitutional Nationalism, says the scheme will a be further contribution to disorder on the plea that Ulster must not be coerced. The "Irish Times," Unionist, says three quarters of the Irish people will reject the Bill, whose principles are equally hateful to Unionists and Nationalists.

FRENCH FOREIGN POLICY.

STATEMENT BY M. CLEMENCEAU.

PARIS. December 23. In the course of a statement in the Chamber on foreign policy M. Clemenceau said be did not think the military guarantees offered by Britain and America to France would be again questioned. He went to London to discuss the Turkish question and they now seemed to be on the way to evolve a satisfactory agreement, as the basis for a preliminary agreement had already been established. M. Clementeau declared that the atmosphere in England was as friendly towards France as could be wished. Mr. Lloyd George said "Our two countries must keep closer together than ever. (Prolonged applause.) I shared that sentiment. "Mr. Lloyd George added: If only we are in agreement there will never again be a war in Europe. M. Clemenceau replied: Whatever happens you can count not only on me, who is merely a passing factor, but also on the whole of France" (Renewed applause). M. Clemenceau continued that the Flume question had been an agonizing one. The Italian Government had undertaken to concede Fiume to the Yugo Slavs and upon this pledge the Serbs and Yugo Slave relied, but Italy had gone back on her pledges. Italian opinion had become heated and France, Britain and America had been seeking a solution. The latest indications afforded promise of a solution acceptable to all. (Applause.) M. Clemenceau stated that the questions of Constantinople, Anatolia, Syria. the Balkans and Poland were also considered. Mr. Lloyd George and himself, as regards the future of Constantinople and the straits, were agreed on some points, but others were still being discussed by M. Berthelot. M. Clemenceau opined that when Mr. Lloyd George came to Paris they would be able to conclude the discussion. As regards Russia he said they not only would not make peace with Soviet Russia, but refused to negotiate with it. M. Clemenceau scathingly denounced the Bolshevists as the most abominable and most barbarous Government that had ever existed and declared that as long as Russia remained in a state of anarchy there would not be assured reace in Europe. Germany was making clandestine efforts to colonise a part of Russia. We must maintain around Russia a wall of barbed wire. The Chamber passed a vote of confidence in the Government by 488 to 71.

A GERMAN SPY.

STAMP ALBUM AS SECRET CODE.

Joseph Marks, one of the cleverest and most resourceful of Germany's secret service agents, was deported on October 20 by Detective Inspector Fitch and Detective Sergeant Pass-New Scotland-yard.

There was an affecting scene at Charing Station when Marks, as he boarded the Continental express, bade good-bye to a weeping woman friend who had followed the vicissitudes of his career with affectionate

It was in the early days of the war that Marks, the friend of Karl Lody and the dashing young naval lieutenant Bushmann-both of whom were executed at the Tower-went to England. He landed at a southeastern port with an album of fereign stamps the code with which he was to inform the German Admiralty of the movements and activities of the British Navy. He made no secret of his identity and admitted to his interrogators that he was a German born citizen. Scotland Yard, however, had its doubts of his bona fides, and accordingly he was crossexamined by Sir Basil Thomson. director of the British secret service. A dramatic moment came when this hireling of Steinhauer, the head of the German espionage system, broke down with tears in his eyes under the ordeal of examination. Not only did he admit his origin and mission, but he openly confessed that the album of stamps found in his possession was the secret code with which he promised to notify the German Government of the movement of the Grand Fleet and the patrols distributed over various parts of the British coast. His confession of the hazardous role he was playing in espionage not only saved his own life but enabled the British authorities to keep a sharp look out for others engagedion a similar mis-Marks was tried before a court-martial at the Middlesex Guildhall, and was sentenced to penal servitude. In the buffet adjoining Charing Cross Station the spy related to a Daily Express representative the story of his capture at Tilbury by Scotland-Yard detectives, and then

I thanked my stars that I did not share his fate. But Bushmann went to the execution shed with a smile on his face, and came to the salute as the firing squad sent him to his doom." Marks added that he conversed with several of the German spies "They died a who were shot. soldier's death," he remarked, "but in my case I think the authorities made a mistake."

Marks is the scion of a wellknown family at Aix-la Chapelle. He was thrice suspected of espionage by the Germans and arrested. The British Government, however, had conclusive proof of his mission to Britain, and had it not been for his complete confession he would have shared the fate of Lody, Bushmann, and other spies.

Harbin, November 19 .- Omsk the capital of the Siberian Government has fallen. It is stated that the Bolshevik advance was so rapid that there was no time to remove much valuable Government property, including the printing plant and block for the Siberian treasury Notes. Since the Bolshevik advance into central, Siberia, great numbers of Koltchak's troops have gone over to the Reds without firing a shot and with full equipment. It is no uniforms' handed out by British Military Mission are now to be seen in the ranks of the Reds with ever increasing frequency. British rifles, British ammunition and British machine guns are being used by both sides alike. ...

The loss of Omsk means the loss of the rich granaries of central Siberia, this fact alone is of great significance, for the further the Whites are pushed eastwards, the greater the difficulty in feeding not only the army but also the local civil population and the great stream of relugees now flowing towards the Pacific chast.

SILVER CRISIS.

HOARDING IN FRANCE.

The rarity of so-called token money has been more or less endemic in the French provinces since the beginning of the war. But in Paris only ran occasional fit of hoarding has seized hold of the inhabitants, mostly small shopkeepers and certain categories of the less-educated population. The same phenomenon occurred here at the beginning of the war, and a little again at the end of 1915. but mostly for base coinage, and there was an acute tension in silver in the spring of last year at about the time of the great German offensive, when this money almost disappeared. But the crisis passed; silver and copper money made ats reappearance, and even the famous "ecu," the five-franc piece.

This hoarding is the principal cause again of the scarcity of metal. money, a shortage now becoming very irksome in business. The reason is that a great many misguided persons fear shortly a depreciation of the bank note within the territory of the Republic compared with silver. It may be said that the danger is remote, and that by hoarding metal people could not stave off the evil day. But it is necessary that the woollen stocking be emptied and also the hiding-places in the chest of drawers be uncovered. Malpractice, as I said before has led to the illicit melting of silver money, and also the export of francs, but the chief offender is the hoarder. Melting into ingots to obtain pure silver is no easy matter. Refining operations require care, knowledge, and special appliances, for French silver money contains, in addition to silver, a proportion of alloy in the form of copper and tin. The value of silver has only risen sufficiently for improper eperations to be really profitable. One reason is that certain Eastern countries like India and China absorb and demand for their payments huge quantities of silver. Of course, the drawbacks are only temporary, for soon both India and China will be amply supplied. Specialists consider that before very long the price of silver metal will again become normal.

When war broke out there were £16,000,000 worth of silver money, and up to that time £800,000 worth were coined every year to maintain the level. Since the war £20,000,000 in silver have been minted or £4,000,-000 yearly, which has put into eirculation almost double the amount of silver existing before the war. This sum represents a total weight of about 4,500 tons, and it is impossible that this mass of precious metal could have been made to disappear solely by melting or export abroad. The threat has gone round in some | quarters that is hoarding goes on persistently all the silver money may be called in. a decree which would have the effect of rapidly emptying the woollen stockling. But those best able to speak, whether operators in the money market or officials of the Mint. do not seem to apprehend the necessity. of so drastic a measure. The present uneasiness will certainly be relieved by more intense production at the Mint and the early putting into circulation; of silver, bronze and nickel money to the value of £400,000,: - Laily Telegraph.

THE STANDARD UNIFORM.

With regard to the wearing of the standard uniform in railway--owned ships, the Imperial Merchant Service Guild has recently received a letter from the Board of Trade in reply to representations which they made some considerable time ago in respect of the South Eastern and Chatham Railway; pointing out that the captains and officers in these ships, had been forbidden to wear. the standard uniform under instructions from the officials of of the company. The Board of Trade now the Guild that this matter was inquired into at the time, with the result that in September last the Board understands that the Mercantile Marine Standard Uniform was adopted in this company, and that under paragraph (1) of the Order in Council of September, 1918, the badge of the company was substituted, for the standard cap badge. This settles the matter so far as the one company. is concerned, but there are others where the standard uniform has not yet been adopted, and this formed the basis of representations which the Guild has recently made to Sir Eric Geddes, the Minister of Transport, on the matter, which it is hoped will have the desired effect.-Journal of Commerce.

AMERICA AND THE TREATY.

BENEFITS NOT OBLIGATIONS WANTED.

The "Times" Washington correspondent says the Foreign Relations Committee has reported to the Senate that it has redrafted the Knox resolution proposing to repeal by joint Congress resolution the joint resolution whereby America went to war in 1917. The Knox resolution if adopted would automatically create an Americo-German state of peace. It also reaffirms that American policy must adjust disputes by mediation and arbitration and it is admittedly intended to reap the benefits of the Peace Treaty without its obligations.

In the Senate Mr. Underwood introduced a resolution to appoint a committee of ten Senators to consider ways and means of arriving at ratification of the Treaty.

Congress has gone into recess and Senator Underwood's resolution is held over till the next session.

The Mahsuds retreated up the Takkiram valley. After this our transport columns were exceptionally free from sniping which suggests that the enemy has been heavily punished.

NOTICES.

Owing to the death of Mr. J. H. M. Mead there will be no sporting events. at the K.C.C. to-day and to-morrow.

Kowloonites will be deeply grieved at the news of the death of "Jimmy Mead. He was a close triend of the writer of these notes who can youch for the fact that a " good man has left us." A brief biographical sketch of the late Mr. Mead appears in another column,

. It is "expected that, the Kowloon Residents' Association meeting will be held at an early date after the Christmas_holidays, We hope won't be a " frost."

Since writing, the above we learn that the Government has refused the use of the Hall of Kowloon British School for the purpose of holding the proposed Kowloon Residents' Association meeting. We are informed that this decision has not been given with any object of obstructing the meeting but because Government buildings cannot be used for political purposes: The meeting will therefore be held in the City Hall sometime about the middle of January.

Kowloonites, whilst congratulating Mr. A. E. Pain on promotion to the managership of the head branch of Messrs. Moutrie and Company in Shanghai, will regret his departure from Kowloon, the community of which Mr. Paine was a very popular member. He leaves by the s.s. "" Ecuador.

There has been a certain amoun of shakings of heads and waggings of fingers in connection with the new experiments on the part of Mr. Nightingale, the Headmaster of Kowloon British School, who believes in making school life to young pupils attractive and cheerful and, as is now wellknown - little, social gatherings and parties have been arranged from time to time with that object in view. "Too ambitious" a lady schoolteacher on the Hongkong side is reported to have remarked, and so or and so forth.

If anybody had any real doubts as to whether Mr. Nightingale's innovations were misjudged they should have attended the Christmas party held on profit. the 19th inst. In the old days we used to look upon our headmaster as a sort of ogre who was only to be approached in fear and trembling and his office to the juvenile mind, appeared to be solely for the purpose of administering the cane.

Not so Mr. Nightingale. At the party referred to, the little ones ap- to where the advantage of buying proached him more as they would a sterling comes in unless it is by acent joke, to which to retire for good. imaster complied "Not calnecessary prinyou. Wasn't ecessary to

Our advice to Mr. Nightingale is " carry on." The spontaneous success of the experiment is sufficient warranty for continuing. There are always people ready to express disappoval at départures from rule of thumb working, especially where children are concerned but in this case such people will no doubt have many opportunities in the future of seeing for themselves the unqualified success of Mr. Nightingale's experiment which must bring them round to his way of thinking.

Kowloon churchgoers were very favourably impressed on first acquaintance with the Rev. G. R. Lindsay M.A., at the reception given at St. "Andrew's Church Hall on Monday evening. Also Mrs. Lindsay seems to be the exact type of English womanhood that succeeds in the East.

It cost my worthy editor fifty "chips" for speaking out of his turn (at least, so the judges decided) but I do not think I shall be committing

THURSDAY'S CABLES. THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

LONDON, December 18th.

'At the conclusion of the reception at the Guildhall, the Prince of Wales, proceeding to the Mansion House for luncheon with the Lord Mayor, was the recipient of a further ovation from the

The health of the Prince of Wales was proposed by Mr. Lloyd George, who emphasised that the Throne united the varying laws, languages, institutions and peoples of the Empire. The Empire had a multitude of races owing common loyalty to the Throne which was displayed conspicuously in the time of peril.

He affirmed that the Prince's visit to Canada and the other Dominions would act like a tonic in its powerful and invigorating effect.

The Prince of Wales, responding delivered a remarkable utterance which was frequently punctuated with cheers.

The Prince of Wales, describing his tour, said that nothing had appealed to him more than the large number of exservice men who greeted him everywhere, often coming long distances. Many of them were haddy wounded. He could not speak too strongly of the great debt which the Empire owed to the soldiers and sailors who fought in the war.

He wanted all ex-service men in every part of the Empire to remember him as an old comrade in arms and look upon him in the future as a comrade in spirit (Cheers).

He had returned with a much clearer idea of what was meant by the British Empire, of what was more appropriately called the British Commonwealth. The British race had long left the Grecian and Roman idea of empire behind.

The Empire was now something far grander than was implied in the partnership of free nations, (Cheers) living under the same system of laws, pursuing the same democratic aims, actuated by the same humane ideals, "and it is the younger nations—Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and India—who are now universally recognised as nations by the fact that they were signatories to the Peace Treaties, which they fought so magnificently to secure." (Cheers).

The Prince paid a tribute to the part India had played in the war; he said he looked forward to visiting that wonderful country.

The position of the self-governing Dominions was different. They were inhabited by highly advanced democracies who had made new civilisations out of wildernesses.

"Think what they achieved in four generations. Think of their noble sacrifices in the war. There is no limiting bounds to which their progress and development may some day attain. (Cheers).

"It is no exaggeration to say that the united section of the British Empire in the war was one of the features least expected by the enemy, and was very effective in securing a victorious peace (Cheers).

(Cheers).

'The people of the Old Country must realise that the patriotism of the Dominions is national patriotism, not mere loyalty to the world-wide British system of life and government, and, above all, loyalty to the British Empire, of which Britain like the Dominions is only one

He felt the inspiration of this great idea throughout the tour, but he also learned that the loyalty of the Dominions was in a very special sense loyalty to the Orown, and the Crown represented the

The King was constitutionally the sovereign of the Empire and occupied exactly the same place in Canada and the rest of the British Empire as he did in British

His House, although originally founded in Britain, belonged equally to all the other nations of the Commonwealth. He said he looked forward keenly to visiting, in the near future, the other Dominions, where he knew he would feel equally at in the near future, the other Dominions, where he knew he would feel equally at Home.

After expressing his warm appreciation of the welcome accorded to him in the United States, the Prince of Wales concluded by saying that the war had put an end to the idea that Britain was played out. The Dominions would be the first to recognise that Britain took the first strain of the war, bore the heaviest burdens and made the greatest sacrifices. The world still looked anxiously to Britain for an example of confidence and steadiness. Britain's duty now was to show the world that she could work at adjusting the social, economic and industrial problems with general fairness and sympathy, and strive wholeheartedly towards the goal of happier conditions of life, ensuring that every man and woman in the country enjoy the just proceeds of their labours and every child born into the country have a fair sporting chance. The problems could only be solved by

The Prince's personality created quite a thrill of enthusiasm among the large and distinguished audience. Apart from slight nervousness, which was only to be expected in a young man, his demeasour and manner impressed greatly both the Ministers and diplomatists present, who, in private conversation afterwards, expressed their intense satisfaction of such a limitable representation of the Royal House.

PREMIER ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

London, December 18th.

In the House of Commons, Mr. Lloyd George, in a speech during the debate on foreign affairs, denied the suggestions of secret diplomacy during or since the Peace Conference.

He emphasised the wisdom of reficence regarding the delicate situation in the Adriatic, where the Italian Government was faced with the greatest difficulties.

As regards the Anglo-Franco-American Agreement, we were undoubtedly free to reconsider our decision if the United States did not ratify it,

We however did not contemplate that the United States would dishanour their great representatives signatures. If the Government was faced with the United Russia was a frightful morass. Neither Britain, France, or Italy was undertaking further responsibility beyond Britain's promise of £17,000,000 worth of material to the anti-Bolsheviks.

The American and Japanese Governments were discussing regarding action in Siberia, if the Bolsheviks progressed much further eastwards.

It was impossible to make peace with Russia because she had no Government able to speak for the whole people. The fortunes of the warring sections fluctuated and great tracts were unrepresented by any belligerents.

If the Bolsheviks claimed to speak for Russia, let them summon freely an elected National Assembly. Last week's deliberations in Downing Street resulted in the conclusion that it was only possible to watch the situation vigilantly, and make peace immediately Russia, emerged from the darkness, and some form of steady Government was established.

The Premier referred to the not inconsiderable assistance already given to Austria, but this was admittedly inadequate. England could not undertake the whole task. We had been asked to help in all directions, because of our reputation to readily respond to appeals, but we could not carry burdens beyond our

He dwelt on the strain on British resources through open-handed assistance, and declared that the only remedy was that America should fairly participate along with Britain and France.

Britain must rehabilitate herself. The whole future civilisation of the world depended on that. (Cheers). We had waited to the very limit for America to show a disposition to participate in the guardianship of the Christian communities before concluding the Peace Treaty with Turkey, but now considered ourselves entitled, and proposed to make such peace at the carliest possible moment. (Cheers): Preliminary discussions had begun very promisingly and would be resumed in a few days either in London

The Government had done its utmost to further the League of Nations, and was convinced that this country at any rate must continue with the League. (Cheers).

If the discoveries made almost at the end of the war were employed, unparallelled horrors, such only as are described in works of fiction like those of Mr. H. G. Wells, would result. It was vital to the world to have civilized means to prevent war with such additional terrors. The Premier concluded with an optimistic note on the signs of steady recuperation of British trade and finance, as evidenced by the November returns.

HAYAS REVIEW

Paris, December 19th.

A Havas message says:—
The new Chamber of Deputies, having completed the work of validating the elections, elected M. Deschanel as the President of the Chamber without opposition.
A lively contest took place for the Vice-Presidencies, M. Raoul Peret, M. Arago Le Febvre, M. Du Prey and M. Androw Le Fevre being elected.

The Minister of Finance submitted the financial programme comprising the first vote of an additional credit for the fiscal year 1919 of 1,072,000,000 francs, and a second provisional credit applicable to the first three months of 1920.

The chief increases in national expenditures are for pensions, railway repairs and renewals, increase of salaries and reconstruction in the liberated regions.

The greatest aircraft exhibition ever held was opened, to-day, at the Grand Palais in Paris by M. Poincare. The total number of exhibits is about 400. Over 90 percent of the machines shown are French.

Bleriot shows a mammoth machine capable, of carrying 28 passengers, and a Caudron biplane which, fully loaded with oil petrol, has room for 18 passengers.

Apart from a few models the show is entirely of heavier than air machine.

FRIDAY'S CABLES.

BOLSHEVISM IN THE EAST.

London, December 22nd.

Much light has been thrown on the wide spread of Bolshevist propagands, especially in the East, by a correspondent in the Times, who says that the Soviet Government has given a subsidy of 5,000,000 roubles gold to the "League for the Liberation of Islam," the object of which is to promote seditious movements by the Moslems against European domination.

The League includes Egyptiam, Turkish. Indian, Afghan and Persian Nationalists. It has its headquarters at Moscow and two sub-committees—the "Eastern Central Committee" which supervises all the organisations in Persia, Trans-Caucasia, Anatolia, Torkestan, Afghanistan and India, and has its headquarters with the forces of Mustapha Kemal "Pasha, the Turkish Nationalist leader, and the "European Central Committee" in Berlin, which deals with propaganda in Europe, Egypt and European Turkey, etc.

The Bolsheviste are also urging the Chinese revolutionaries to become Bolshevists and are endeavouring-to foment a revolution in Korea.

YELLOW INVASION AGAINST WESTERN EUROPE.

LONDON, December 22nd.
The Geneva correspondent of the Daily Express says that an intimate friend of Trotzky states that the latter is preparing a great offensive against Poland next Spring, aided by Chinese troops who are being trained at the rate of 8,000 monthly in the Soviet military schools and are well-paid and well-fed.

Trotaky declares that Bolshevism is firmly rooted and is spreading widely in China where he expects a Soviet revolution shortly. He then intends to use a yellow invasion against Western Burope.

IRISH HOME RULE.

LONDON, December 23nd.

Elaborate precautions were taken to prevent a Sinn Fein demonstration in the House of Commons to-day, when Mr. Lloyd George outlined the eagerly-awaited. Irish proposals of the Government. Strong guards were posted in the public galleries and other parts of the building. The Nationalists were absent.

" A REST OF ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION." At the outset the Premier emphasised the fact that his part was as difficult a one as ever confronted a Minister, especially after the discreditable outrage of Friday. (Cheers). The atmosphere was charged with the reek of attempted assassination and was not favourable to the promotion of a measure of reconciliation, but Parliament should not be swept. away by its indignation. He paid an eloquent tribute to Viscount French, and expressed appreciation of the fact that the Heads of the Catholic Church had not lost any time in denouncing the outrage. Dealing with the Government's proposals, Mr. Lloyd George laid stress on the fact that no proposals acceptable to British opinion stood any chance of acceptance in the present position of Irish affairs. The Government's plan was based on a recognition of three fundamental facts-first, the impossibility of severing Ireland from the United Kingdom; second, the opposition of Nationalist Ire. land to British rule in Ireland despite the fact that Ireland was never so prosperous as now; and, third, the opposition of the North-East to Irish rule. Subject to those three conditions the Government proposed that self-government be conferred on the whole of Ireland through the establishment of two Legislatures one of which would be the Parliament of Southern Freland, and the other the Parliament of Northern Ireland.

Four alternative proposals were discussed regarding areas-first, that Uister form one unit and the other three provinces another unit; second, that there be County option; third, that the six north-eastern Counties form one unit. All these contained the objection regarding the division of the population... The fourth suggestion was to ascertain the homogeneous North-eastern section and constitute it a separate area, climinating where practicable, the Catholic communities whilst including the Protestant communities in the coterminous counties in order to produce an area as homogeneous as possible under the circumstances.

It was further proposed to constitute a Council of Ireland, consisting of representatives of both legislatures and serving as a link between the two sections of Ireland, whereby a joint administration of common services could be arranged. The Irish Legislatures would have complate discretion regarding the powers to be conferred upon the Council and the services to be jointly controlled." The Irish Legislatures would also have full constituent powers, without further reference to the Imperial Parliament, to create a single Irish legislature if both sections. desired it. Thus it would rest with the Irish people themselves to determine where ther they wanted union. As a greater inducement, additional taxing powers would be handed over to the Irish Parliament as soon as unity was accomplished. Ireland's representation at Westminster would be reduced to forty. Certain powers would be reserved to the Imperial Parliament, including those of the Crown, the right to make peace or war, the conduct of Foreign Affairs, the Army, Navy, Defence, Treason, Trade outside Ireland, Navigation (including morchant shipping, wireless and cables), coinage, trade-marks, and light-houses, and also the higher Judiciary, pending agreement between the two Legislatures regarding the method of appointments. The powers of the Parliaments would be very considerable. They would have full control of Education, Local Government, Land, Agriculture, Roads, Bridges, Trans-(including railways and canals), Old-Age pensions, Insurance, Municipal affairs, the local Judiciary. Hospitals, Labour legislation, Licensing, all the machinery for the maintenance of law and order except higher the Judi-

It was not proposed to retain control of the Police in imperial hands beyond three years, while security would be given to all members of the Police Force and the Oivil Service. The Post Office would not be transferred until both parts in Ireland united in asking for the change. There would also be clauses for the protection of minorities.

Dealing with the question of finance, Mr. Lloyd George declared that the absence of any provision in the 1914 Bill for a contribution towards the maintenance of the Empire was a supreme injustice to the tax-payer in Great Britain. The Government proposed to give the Irish Governments the whole advantage of those taxes which were raised in Ireland in excess of a fair contribution to the Imperial services. Thus, the revenue of Ireland in 1918 being £41,438,000 and the expenditure £23,500,000, there would therefore be a contribution of £18,000,000 towards Imperial expenditure, which included war pensions. Each Parliament would be granted £1,000,000 to cover its.

initial expenditure, while the proceeds of land annunities would also be handed over as a free gift to Ireland, totalling £3,000,000.

The two Parliaments would have the taxation powers of the American States. Income-tax, Super-tax, Excess Profitstax, Customs and Excise would be collected. Imperially, but when Ireland was united the Imperial Parliament could consider whether the Customs should handed over.

In conclusion the Prime Minister. pleaded for the closing of the chapter of mistakes, follies, and crimes on both sides-The question now was not who was blameworthy but how to set matters right. It was most important for both countries to realise thoroughly the limitations of acceptance. Unless Ireland had real control of her purely domestic affairs it would be idle to proceed. "On the other hand "-said the Prime Minister, speaking deliberately and with the utmost emphasis—"Britain cannot accept separation." (Loud cheers). The men who thought that Britain could be compelled by force to concede anything unjust to her own people or fatal to her own life and security could not have read the story, of the last five years. (Cheers). This was not a time when anyone would suspect Britain of conceding from weakness. Would anyons taunt the land which destroyed the greatest military Empire in the world largely by its own power that it was simply quailing before a band of wretched assessins! (Cheers).

The world would know that Britain was entering upon this scheme prompted by a deep sense of justice, which had sustained the land through these last years of sacrifice. (Loud cheers).

ATTEMPT ON LORD PRESIDES LIFE.

The newspapers report that a shot was fired at Lord French at Dublin to-day.

It missed the Viceroy, but killed a civilian and wounded a policeman.

Lord French was motoring from the railway station, where he had arrived from the West of Iroland at one this afternoon when several abots were fired at him from Phoenix Park. Two bullets passed through the Viceroy's motor car. A cyclist policeman escorting the car was hit on the foot.

The military escort promptly returned the fire, killing one of the attackers, who was subsequently found holding a bomb.

LONDON, December 19th.

In the House of Commons, Mr. Ian

Macpherson said that the outrage on Lord French had occurred between Ashdown Station and Ashdown Park gate. Four bombs were thrown from behind a bedge. The assailant who was shot has been identified. He was carrying two revolvers.

London, December 19th.

The official report of the attack states that one of Lord French's personal attendants was killed. The news caused a consternation in Parliament. Many messages of sympathy have been sent to Viceregal Lodge.

The aftempt on Lord French's life occurred the very day the Cabinet was meeting to consider the Home Rule proposal which will be outlined by the Premier on December 22nd. It is expected that the outrage will affect the tone of the Premier's speech but not the character of the proposals.

There were consultations after the outrage.

Mr. Macpherson has arranged to leave for Ireland immediately.

Lowney, December 20th.

The outrage is condemned in the stressest terms by the papers, but, with the exception of the Moraing Post, which calls the Government to let Sinn Fein, which declared war, suffer the consequences of war, the editorials generally hope that the crime will not affect the Government's policy.

The Daily Chrusticle urges the Government, while vigorously repressing terrorism, to go ahead unswervingly with the new Home Rule Bill.

The Daily Mail hopes that the crime will not be made an excuse for prolonging the era of repression and deferring

The Times sees in the monstrobe occurrence"no sufficient reason to turn aside from the Work of Irish settlement, and says that the Premier has a great opportunity for great statesmanship on December 22nd.

The Daily News, while reprobating carefully the premeditated crime, declares that it is a challenge to the Government to produce an alternative to coercion.

The London papers publish further editorials on the position in Ireland.

The Daily Managers that a large reward be offered for the discovery of the miscreants and points out that the reward of £10,000 offered in the case of the murders of Burks and Cavendish resulted in the murderers being caught and hanged.

The Daily Chronicle expects that Mr. Lloyd George's statement to-day on the Government's Irish Home Rule proposals will be broad, fair and dispassionate, and, although it will not be favourably received by Irish Extremists, the Government must make up its mind to persevere with it.

The Daily News says that the Premier should make it clear beyond doubt that the Government at last is in carnest about doing something to end the rule of the jack-boot in Ireland.

The Times says that Mr. Lloyd George cannot hope for anything approximating national support if he attempts to justify the administration of the Irish executive. The new principle of Irish Government must be stated and accompanied by a binding assurance of a firm purpose to put the principle into effect. To-day will decide whether the Government will meet the great obligation or will admit its failure and proclaim the bankruptcy of British statesmanship.

London, December 20th.

Mr. Bonar Law, speaking at Liverpool last night, after declaring that the Coalition was never more homogeneous and the talk of a general election was nonsense, said, amid tremendous cheering, that the Government would not allow an Irish Republic to be established. The attempt on the life of Lord French was significant, and was indicative of the spirit in which a certain section of Ireland was going to welcome the Government's honest attempt to deal with the subject on December 22nd. Such attempts would never move the British people to grant self-determination.

CONTRACT SCANDAL.

If members of Parliament care to inquire how money is wasted they will find innumerable instances of the most prodigal disregard of business principles. A case in point, A certain Government department was advised by its legal chief, that a claim for £40,000 was not in order, and inquiry showed that the claimant firm ran their business in two distinct"sections, (a) Government contracts and (b) private work. The legal chief discovered that the claim had nothing to do with the Government contracts side, but by some remarkable means had been put in. His view was upheld by the law advisers to the Government, but curious to relate without the case ever being referred to the head of the department against which the claim was being preferred, he wrote a letter to the financial department requesting that the £40,000 be paid to the claimants as a matter of policy!! And these are the men who are preaching economy. Journal of Commerce.

WOMEN'S GOLF BOOTS.

The Englishwoman, especially the sportswoman, has always been arraigned because of her supposed liking for sensible boots and broad toes. The return of the narrow toe came with the end of the war for social and afternoon functions, but now women golfers have begun a fashion of more daintiness in footwear. The shoe that is worn on the golf links by the best-dressed women is, although useful, more slimly built, with graceful, long toes. At the Ladies' Championship at Ranelagh a press representative noticed that most of the women present had particularly well cut shoes, some in soft glace kid, some in patent leather, some in brown, with heels if not high, not too low to be smart. The English sportswoman has proved in her dress that sensible clothes are not necessarily inelegant, and that a game can be played in a shoe that is both comfortable and chic at the same time.
